When Should I Give My Dog a Joint Supplement?

As dog owners, we understand our dogs better than anyone else. As your dog gets older, you may begin to notice that they aren't quite as sprightly as they once were. At this point, you might want to consider adding a joint supplement to their diet for some extra support. You could also start them on a joint supplement, such as our Flexus 10, before they show any signs of discomfort. This can serve as an excellent preventative measure, particularly for working dogs or certain breeds that may be more susceptible to mobility and joint issues.
